LET YOUR IDEAS TAKE FLIGHT

Let your ideas take flight

When I was given the opportunity to work on a much larger canvas and put my skills in design and overseeing construction management into working on some of the world's largest and most prestigious cruise liners, I jumped at the chance. I had a great journey through a new world, huge complex vessels and interior vistas, cutting edge technology and very short build times, all very useful skill sets for the modern superyachts being built today. My personal milestones included working on the Disney fleet and the iconic Queen Mary 2, by far the largest vessel in the cruise fleet in its heyday.

While I was working in this new environment, there were opportunities for me in superyacht projects and I can add some major brand names to the superyacht builds. I helped create such industry giants as Lurssen Werft. But now a fresh future beckons for me and I have returned to my roots, joining with the many industry specialists and my colleagues in the Superyacht Industry.

A vision of tomorrow, today

With many years working in the superyacht industry the Chrysalis Yacht Design community have a wealth of experience and solutions to add into the mix. A modern new superyacht has a myriad of systems from propulsion, navigation, tenders, stabilisation.....all parts of a yacht's complex design parameters. But the owner and guests will appreciate and admire the creativity of the interior/exterior design and layout and enjoy the 'hotel' facilities. This is where the Chrysalis Yacht Design team, the 'specialist community', deliver a seamless project from conception to design and engineering fulfilment in all the production parameters, on time and on budget.

Drawing on experience

All of the specialists involved with Chrysalis Yacht design are able to demonstrate an individual provenance and body of work. The community of specialists who join together as a bespoke team will realise and deliver an outstanding client project. This may be the creation of a completely bespoke yacht or work with builders who are offering semi-custom yachts and need to engage a design team for fitout and the all-important project management.

At the same time as the global yacht fleet is growing rapidly, older yachts need extensive refits in ten-year cycles and new yacht owners in the brokerage arena will want to add their personality plus new equipment and toys. Chrysalis Yacht Design and the support team have many years of experience in refit programmes of all sizes.

Let your dreams guide you

The art of yacht design encompasses several different elements, including: Proportions and lines, styling and detailing, colour and materials, and functionality. A well-designed yacht can be considered a work of art in its own right.

Overall, the art of yacht design involves balancing aesthetics with practical considerations to create a yacht that is both beautiful and functional. A skilled yacht designer will use their expertise and creativity to design a yacht that is truly a work of art, and that provides a unique and enjoyable experience for the owner and their guests.

It's all about experience

Chrysalis Yacht Design has an impressive community of specialists who join together to build a dream-team of creative and engineering knowhow tailored specifically to deliver exactly what the client expects, perhaps even more. This could be a start of a special relationship where inspired interior design, cutting edge naval architecture and project management meets engineering excellence and adds another step upwards in the art of creating a truly exclusive superyacht.
